

Greetings my friend and welcome back, this time with the pen again. Were you afraid to continue allowing your voice to sound the message? You should not be. The experiment for you went well. For us, it was a regular event. Many others across the planet are allowing us to use their voice to send the messages. You did well, though you were wrong claiming it to be the first time. Others have spoken messages through you before, yet you devalued them and judged them yourself to not be our words. But I understand why. At that period of your learning, you were not yet trusting the bond between us.

We are aware that you have again been giving a lot of thought about stopping this work as a public experiment.
Your reasons appear to be because of the lack of financial reward you are receiving from the effort you put into it. Please consider this carefully. You do not do this to seek those forms of reward. Instead, may I remind you, you do so as part of the foundations of the path forward. But the path you make will be strong and lasting and followed by others on a journey similar to yours.

That should in itself be reward enough. I know you are concerned about bread on the table, but that is there already my friend.

Don't veer from the straight path you're laying and most certainly don't leave it incomplete. You've said many times that you've often considered yourself as a nearly man. You are not, and that is a state of mind that is most unhelpful. The ears that you send these messages to are not deaf. It is their voice that appears to be silent.

Do you not appreciate how far you have come with this walking so far? Let me tell you dear friend, you've not even started. So much more lies ahead for you. Today you learnt that your podcasts received 14k downloads across the world in one day. All those listeners your work is touching. And you still harbour thoughts of walking away?

There are many great minds here waiting to talk through you. But we need you to progress more first. You will be rewarded, if that you can be certain. This ~~is~~ work is not being done in vain.

It has reason and purpose.
It is important. Progression comes with commitment.
Regression is failure.

Would you return to your cabinet this week please?
Let us use that means your voice, to talk with you. This will help us increase the speed of the delivery of the message.
As we always say, it is a pleasure talking to you.
You are a wonderful listener and a fine student. I have no more to share with you for this session. I just wish you to heed our words this night and appreciate your purpose and self worth a little more.

Goodbye for now.
