

Good morning, nice of you to join us again. There are times in your life on earth that it is okay to walk away from something. To step back and leave the scene that is playing out.

Sometimes the best observations are done from a distance as it reveals the bigger picture. You've heard of the quote that says 'being too close to the tree doesn't allow you to see the entire forest'.

Stepping back is not the same as walking away for good. Stepping back can allow one to enjoy the landscape and to see where they are in that picture.

We know you are sometimes struggling to keep growing as you are used to doing.
You have a few other challenges draining on your energy. If you feel you want to step back for a period, it might do you
some good.

We know you enjoy transcribing our words and now you always try to find time for connecting.

But we also are aware that you're undecided with other things that need doing.

You've held your strategy under just sheets for most of this year and are concerned about what to do with it. Well, take a look at the situation.

You stepped back from the recording side of your work because of the expense it was costing
you. In that time away from it, what have you learn? What does the bigger picture now tell you?

You know now that the actual podcasts are still being downloaded over the plane, so they are still working. Soon you will have them all back out in that virtual world. At that point, you have to decide once and for all, should you create more new ones or should you close the studio for good.

For what it's worth, this voice you are hearing, whether you believe it's your own inner spirit and thoughts deep inside, or whether you believe it to be the voice of the spirit world, wants to help.

Wait if you wish. But we feel you might be better to rebirth once more and create occasional new recordings to share with the world. We suggest aummy for one brand new guest recording every month.

Then we give you other time to create some shorter recordings that need less time to edit and produce.

You have a following that will be so happy to hear this new work.

It will also give you more focus and direction.

We've inspired you to write this ~~so~~ early in the morning because we want to help you get back to what you truly enjoy doing.

This is truly the power of your inner voice - the voice of spirit.

Think on. We've committed you to the pen to a new plan. Start planning ahead. It is perhaps time for you to ~~go~~ back into the project. Plan the shorter versions and arrange a big interview.
It will be good for you and many people will be so excited.

Now I know ~~it~~ ~~is~~ ~~why~~
you up to do this writing.

Perhaps now you should close the book on this session, and rest a little more while you think over these words.

Thank you for writing our words. We are always here to listen, as we do, and will help whenever we can, though the decisions are always yours.

Thank you my dear friend.
